Coastal sediment transport takes place in near-shore environments due to the motions of waves and currents. At the mouths of rivers, coastal sediment and fluvial sediment transport processes mesh to create river deltas.. Coastal sediment transport results in the formation of characteristic coastal landforms such as beaches, barrier islands, and capes.

Lacustrine Plains (or lake plains) are lakes that get filled by incoming sediment.Over time, the water may drain from the lake, leaving the deposited sediments behind. This can be caused by natural drainage, evaporation or other geophysical processes.. The soil of the plain left behind may constitute fertile and productive farm land, due to the previous accumulation of lacustrine sediments.
