In statistics, a linear probability model is a special case of a binomial regression model. Here the dependent variable for each observation takes values which are either 0 or 1. The probability of observing a 0 or 1 in any one case is treated as depending on one or more explanatory variables. For the "linear probability model", this relationship is a particularly simple one, and allows the ...

Simultaneous equation models are a type of statistical model in the form of a set of linear simultaneous equations. They are often used in econometrics. One can estimate these models equation by equation; however, estimation methods that exploit the system of equations, such as generalized method of moments (GMM) and instrumental variables estimation (IV) tend to be more efficient.
